

Predictions Revlon Bet $35 MILLION DOLLARS On Every Year Plus Life Secrets For Happiness & Success – With David Leddick

The article is an engaging conversation between David and Daryl Urbanski, discussing critical life lessons, navigating career paths, and the essence of creating a fulfilling legacy.

It is crucial as it fosters understanding for young professionals or anyone looking for helpful insights into leading a fulfilled life and building a career.

The benefit is that these exercises will guide you in reflecting and applying these lessons to your life, help you make mindful career choices, understand the concept of legacy, and optimize your pursuit of fulfillment.

Quote to remember from the Interview

“The world is abundant. There are so many ways to make a living out there. Always be able to go back down and do something else.” - David

What You'll Learn From the Activity

The questions and activities will help deepen your understanding of the lessons from the article, allow you to reflect on your career choices and legacy, and navigate your path towards success, happiness, and fulfillment.

Activity

Reflect on the time period of being 20 to 30 years old. What significant lessons did you learn?

Are you treating your career as your entire life or just a part of it? Why?

How would you define a "test run" in the context of your life?

How have you used your past failures to better your future?

Write down three ways you can experiment more to find your passion or what suits you best.

What are three things you love doing that you could potentially see as long-term careers?

Reflect on your journey from 30 to 35. What have you learned?

Are you pursuing work that is meaningful to you? Why or why not?

Name a situation in the past where you had to adapt and switch your career? How did the experience yield better results?

How have you demonstrated an abundance mentality in your career path?

List down five other potential ways you can make a living.
Reflect on the concept of legacy. How do you perceive a successful legacy?

Beyond material achievements, what elements do you think are crucial to your legacy? Why?

Write down three "roles models" you admire for their approach to life and legacy. What about them do you admire?

How much importance do you place on the people around you in your life?

Would you like to change anything regarding this?

What does the quote, "How many of us have role models for death? After all the lights and screams, that's when the people around you really start to matter" mean to you?

Do you agree with the assertion that passion intersects with profit in the long run? State your reasons.

Who are your role models for dealing with failures in life and why do you look up to them?

What would be the one thing you would share with your younger self about dealing with failure?

In your current lifestyle, are you finding opportunities to learn, implement, and give back? How?

List three key takeaways from this interview and how you intend to apply them to your personal and professional life.

Based on the information given, write a one-paragraph summary of David's philosophy towards life.

Based on the information given, write a one-paragraph summary of Daryl's philosophy towards life.

What do you consider to be your biggest accomplishment so far? How does this accomplishment align with your idea of success and happiness?

If you had a chance to start over, what career path would you choose and why?

How are you creating a balance between your passion and profit?

How have your 20s and 30s shaped your future trajectory?

Reflect on your choices so far, do they align with the legacy you would like to leave behind? Why or Why not?

Write a personal statement of your philosophy towards life, career, and legacy based on the lessons you've gleaned from this interview.

From this exercise, what's your next course of action in relation to your career path and quest for fulfillment?

A large, empty rectangular box with a thin black border, intended for the user to write their response to the question above.